DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 3-4, drawn to the interconnection of a CPU and a data processing logic cell field for data exchange, classified in class 712, subclass 11.
 - II. Claims 5-6, drawn to a method of operating a reconfigurable unit having configuration properties, classified in class 712, subclass 220.
2. Inventions I and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because it is readily recognized that the interconnection between at least one CPU, cache memory, lines, and a data processing logic cell field, and the manner in which data exchange occurs, does not require specific properties of the data processing logic cell field such as the maximum allowable runtime, not does it require the method of modifying those specific properties. Similarly, the subcombination has separate utility such as increasing a configuration's maximum allowed runtime and a method of doing so, and this utility can be used separately in other devices that have different interconnection layouts and methods of data exchange. It is also noted that the examiner believes that a restriction based on subcombinations usable together could also be made because the "data processing logic cell field" does not necessarily equate to "a reconfigurable unit".

The examiner has required restriction between combination and subcombination inventions. Where applicant elects a subcombination, and claims thereto are subsequently found allowable, any claim(s) depending from or otherwise requiring all the limitations of the allowable subcombination will be examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. See MPEP § 821.04(a). Applicant is advised that if any claim presented in a continuation or divisional application is anticipated by, or includes all the limitations of, a claim that is allowable in the present application, such claim may be subject to provisional statutory and/or nonstatutory double patenting rejections over the claims of the instant application.

3. Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

4. Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions require a different field of search (see MPEP § 808.02), restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper. Examiner has conducted a preliminary search and has verified that the search for either one of these groups does not necessarily or in practice result in related art for the other.

5. A telephone call was made to Michelle M. Carniaux on 8/11/2008 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.
6. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
